LAWRENCE BRADI was contacted in the Coffee Shop at the Tides Motel, 5235 North Sheridan Road, where he resides.

BRADI stated he continues to play cards and is trying to lose weight. He declined to talk about any of his associates or any kind of racket activity. He feels the FBI and the government should spend its time investigating communists and the liberal radicals, rather than trying to arrest a $2.00 bookmaker.

Syndicate pair netted in raid

Two top-ranking crime syndicate figures were among 21 persons arrested in a gambling raid on a Northwest Side American Legion post.

Sgt. Gerry Gladden of the police Organized Crime Unit said most of the others arrested also have records as being associated in some way with crime-syndicate figures.

Among those arrested were Lawrence (Larry the Hood) Bradi, 55, and Jasper (Jack Campisi) Campise, 55, both identified by the Illinois Crime Commission as "juice-loan and gambling racketeers."

THE 10-MAN team of raiders swooped down on the Santo Giammarese American Legion Post 1964, 3605 N. Narragansett.

The raiders seized $4,420 in cash and gambling equipment.

Bradi and Campise were both charged with being keepers of a gambling house, Gladden said.

Gladden said he obtained a search warrant from Judge Maurice Lee of Domestic Relations Court before the raid.

He said raiders forced their way into the ground-floor hall after they were refused admittance.

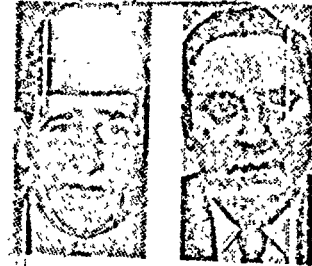

He said they found 21 persons gathered around three poker tables trying to stuff money into their pockets.

BRADI, A well-known associate of crime-syndicate chieftain Ross Prio, has been arrested at least three times since 1933 and has been convicted of larceny, federal income tax evasion and robbery.

Campise has been arrested on charges of aggravated battery and murder.

Gladden said police set up the raid after he received information from an informant that crime-syndicate figures were sponsoring high-stakes gambling activities in the American Legion post.
